Dear Mr Haynes,

I am writing to inform you that I will not be attending this year's annual beach olympics celebration, because I do not believe that dogs without leads should be allowed on the beach.

I am sure that you will agree that while most dogs are well trained and perfectly friendly, there are some dogs that cannot be trusted when small children are around. In fact, just last year, at the same event, a small child was bitten by a dog, which was off of its lead. Do you think that this is acceptable?

In addition, there will be many people enjoying picnic lunches on the beach this year and it is not hygienic to have dogs off of their leads while people are eating. What if a dog were to lick someone's lunch while they were not looking?

For these reasons, I hope you will reconsider allowing dog owners to let their dogs off of their leads during this event.

Yours sincerely,

Jimmy Rhodes
