Here's how to say the most (with adjectives that come after nouns):

Le village le plus historiquee

The most historic village

La ville la plus industrielle

The most industrial town

Les villages les plus pittoresquess

The most picturesque villages

Les régions les plus intéressanteses

The most interesting regions

Superlatives

Here's how to say the least (with adjectives that come after nouns):

Le village le moins historiquee

The least historic village

La ville la moins industrielle

The least industrial town

Les villages les moins pittoresquess

The least picturesque villages

Les régions les moins intéressanteses

The least interesting regions

REMINDER - the key points to consider:

- The adjective must agree with the noun you are describing;
- The definite article (le, la, les) is repeated if the adjective comes after the noun.

Superlatives

Now let's take a look at some examples with adjectives that come before the noun:

Le plus petit village

The smallest village

La moins belle ville

The least beautiful town

Les plus nouveaux stades

Les moins vieilles cathédrales

The least old cathedrals

REMINDER - the key points to consider:

- The adjective must agree with the noun you are describing;
- The definite article (le, la, les) is NOT repeated.

The best and the worst!

Saying the best or the worst is a little different:

Le meilleur théâtre

The best theatre

La pire plage

The worst beach

Les pires s parcs

The worst parks

Les meilleures s bibliothèques

The best libraries

REMINDER - the key points to consider for saying the best/worst:

- Le/la/les meilleur(e)(s) = the best, le/la/les pire(s) = the worst;
- They come before the noun;
- Never say: plus bon or plus mauvais
